Re: Complaint Against Tim Roemer and Roemer for Congress

Dear Mr. Noble:

The National Republican Congressional Committee, by and through its General Counsel, hereby brings this complaint pursuant to 2 U.S.C. § 437g(a)(1) against Tim Roemer and Roemer for Congress. The National Republican Congressional Committee is located at 310 First Street, SE, Washington, D.C.

I. VIOLATIONS

Tim Roemer is the Democrat Congressman from the third district of Indiana, and is currently seeking reelection. Roemer has blurred the distinction between official activity, campaign activity and personal activity. Mixing official, campaign and personal activity is unlawful, and requires Commission investigation and action.

A. Use of Official Resources During Campaign Events

As the attached recent photographs demonstrate, Roemer has used official resources to subsidize his campaign. At first glance, Photos A & B appear to depict Congressman Roemer participating in a local parade in his official capacity. But closer inspection per Photo C reveals that the woman sitting in the back seat is wearing a T-shirt that appears to bear the distinctive red, white and blue Roemer for Congress campaign logo, shown in Photo D. Photos E & F show the license plate on the vehicle – the front plate states U.S. Representative, and the rear plate is “3” (meaning Indiana’s third district) – in other words, an official taxpayer license plate.

COUNSEL

To the extent that one may think Photos A & B only raise an inference of using official resources to subsidize his campaign, Photo G establishes improper conduct beyond a shadow of a doubt. That photo depicts Roemer working the crowd at the same parade. Standing within the confines of the parade route is a Roemer staffer holding a Roemer for Congress sign. Thus, the true purpose of the event is clearly campaign. Yet Roemer utilized official resources in conjunction with his campaigning. Such impropriety warrants Commission investigation and action.

B. Use of Official Office Address on Personal Drivers License

Perhaps more indicative of Roemer's mixing of resources is found on his driving record. That record lists Roemer's address as 217 N. Main Street, South Bend, Indiana – the address listed in the local phone book (attached hereto) for his official headquarters! This shows that the scenes depicted in the attached photos are not an isolated incident. He has also listed a variety of addresses on other documents.

All this raises a question as to possible personal use of campaign funds. The Federal Election Campaign Act prohibits the use of campaign funds to pay for personal expenses. 2 U.S.C. § 439a. Mortgage, rent and utility payments are per se personal use. 11 C.F.R. § 113.1(g)(1)(i). Given that the attached photos indicate that Roemer will not hesitate to mix campaign and official activity, there is a reason to believe that he may be doing the same with his official office. Thus, using his "official" office as a de facto home address may in reality be the use of campaign funds for personnel use. Such a serious violation requires Commission investigation and action.

II. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, the National Republican Congressional Committee respectfully requests that the Federal Election Commission find that there is a reason to believe that a violation of the law has occurred, and investigate the matter promptly.

Respectfully submitted,

Donald F. McGahn II

Chocola: Roemer away too

By JACK COLWELL
Tribune Political Writer

SOUTH BEND—Family values, oft cited by political candidates, became an issue in an unusual way Wednesday in Indiana's 8rd Congressional District race.

Republican challenger Chris Chocola of Bristol criticized his Democratic opponent, U.S. Rep. Tim Roemer of South Bend, for spending too much time in Washington, not enough in the district.

If elected, Chocola said, his wife and two young children would continue to live in the district. He would be in Washington for the votes that often occur Tuesday through Thursday and then fly home as quickly as possible at the close of official business.

Roemer, whose wife and four young children live with him in the Washington area while Congress is in session, said the work of Congress isn't that simple. And he said he wants to be able to be home with his family every night when he's in Washington and then get back to the district as frequently as possible on weekends and during recesses.

"I love my family dearly," Roemer said. "It's the most important thing in the world for me."

And in terms of family values, as he sees it in his own case, having the family in Washington works best for them, Roemer said. He said some members of Congress do have families back in the district, and he wouldn't criticize that choice.

Chocola said in terms of family values, as he sees it, he would prefer to have his two children, ages 10 and 12, continue to live and attend school back in the district, with their dad back as often as possible for their sake and to help keep in touch with the district. Chocola said he wasn't questioning

Chocola said he wasn't questioning whether Roemer was a good father but rather was suggesting that having his family in Washington was a decision based on Roemer growing enamored with Washington and thus losing contact with the district.

The Republican challenger made his contention at a news conference conducted in front of Roemer's district headquarters, at 217 N. Main St. in South Bend.

Chocola

In effect, said Chocola, he was visiting Roemer's "home" address because the congressman had the district office address listed on his Indiana driver's license.

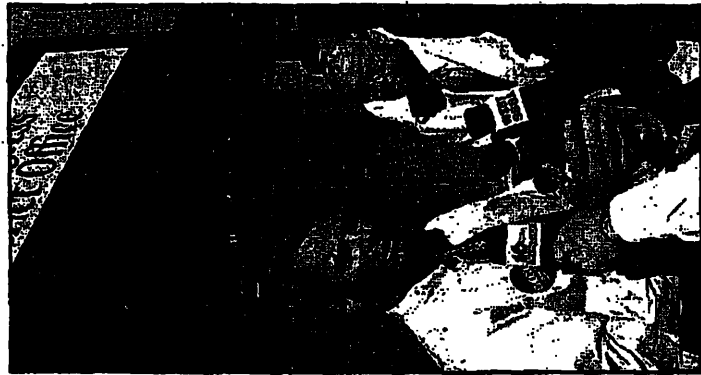

Use of the district office address is both improper and a sign that Roemer has no real home address in the district, Chocola said. Roemer lists his home address on voter registration records as 918 Weber Square in South Bend. That is the home of Charles Roemer, his uncle.

The congressman said his uncle's house is where he stays while back in the district. He said his family owned a condominium in South Bend until the arrival of a third child made it too small for them. He said his uncle's house has more room, and his wife and the children, now four in number ranging in age from 7 years to 2 months, can stay there or with Roemer's parents when in the district.

Roemer said he thought a "business" address could be used on a driver's license. He said he asked for paperwork Wednesday to change the address, if that is needed.

Chocola said, and Roemer confirmed, that the congressman owns no property and pays no property tax in the district.

Roemer said he pays a lot of other taxes back in Indiana — income, sales and auto excise. And he noted that there is no requirement that a person running for office must own property in the district.

Chocola said three Republican congressmen from Indiana — Mark

Souder, 4th District; Steve Buyer, 5th District; and John Hostettler, 8th District — all have families that remain in the state while they are serving in Washington.

Roemer said other Indiana lawmakers, such as Sens. Dick Lugar and Evan Bayh, were among those choosing to have families with them in Washington.

A spokesman for U.S. Rep. Fred Upton, the Republican who represents Michigan's 6th District, said the congressman has his young children with him in Washington during the school year, with the family returning to their house in St. Joseph during the summer.

Chocola said that the House was in session just 189 days in 1999, but that Roemer "spent 40 some days actually here" in the district.

Roemer said the estimate of time in the district was inaccurate and that he remains in touch with constituent views, including going door-to-door to over 30,000 homes in 10 years.

He said Chocola's estimate of time needed to serve well in Washington also was inaccurate. He cited committee meetings and night sessions that often make it impossible or unwise to plan on being there only three days out of the week.

The congressman referred to "my opponent's mud" in responding to the Chocola news conference. He said the Chocola complaint was in line with the negative tone of TV spots Chocola is running to criticize him.

Chocola: Roemer doesn't live in district

Roemer: Address listed on driver's license an error

BY AYLSSA EMORY
Truth Staff

SOUTH BEND — Chris Chocola stood in front of Congressman Tim Roemer's office Wednesday morning, claiming the incumbent Democrat doesn't really live in the Third District.

Chocola hoped his comments on Roemer's residency would make people question Roemer's character. "Maybe he's not being accurate about other issues," he said.

Roemer's office said the Republican challenger's claims are "just silly and barely deserve a response," said campaign worker Jed D'Ercole said.

Chocola mainly attacked Roemer's decision to house his family near Washington and said that Roemer doesn't own property or pay property taxes in the district.

Chocola pledged he would fly back to the district each week and if elected.

"I won't leave Indiana behind," he said.

D'Ercole said, "Tim is busy helping people. He's working today to repeal the marriage penalty. He's working to pro-

D'Ercole said an oversight was made in Roemer's license application, and that paperwork has been filed to list his local residence on his driver's license.

When asked if his comments on Roemer's residence was negative campaigning, Chocola said, "There's something wrong with the process when the person who talks about the facts is perceived as negative."

"It's not negative at all by pointing out facts that are simply facts."

Chocola produced several documents relating to Roemer's residences. These in-
